What are some basic references for native plants in the Chesapeake Bay watershed?

A new guide titled "Native Plants for Northern Virginia" showcases an attractive variety of plants native to our area through the Plant NoVA Natives Campaign. To view it online, visit the campaign's website at www.plantnovanatives.org. This guide is available to be purchased at a table at this native plant sale.

The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service published a good reference titled "Native Plants for Wildlife Habitat and Conservation Landscaping: Chesapeake Bay Watershed." To view it online or download a PDF file of the book, visit the USFWS website at www.nps.gov/plants/pubs/chesapeake/.

Douglas Tallamy, Professor of Entomology and Wildlife Ecology at the University of Delaware in Newark, has written "Bringing Nature Home: How You Can Sustain Wildlife with Native Plants." People rave about this terrific book. To buy the book or learn more, visit the website at www.PlantANative.com/.

Where can I go to see native plant gardens in this area?

The U.S. Botanic Garden has a lovely "Regional Garden" in the "National Garden," which features Mid-Atlantic native plants that highlight the beauty of the region's flora. See www.usbg.gov/national-garden.

The U.S. National Arboretum has a wonderful native plant trail known as the "Fern Valley Native Plant Collection." (It has much more than just ferns.) The collection is organized by habitat and geographic areas for plants of different regions of the eastern U.S. See www.usna.usda.gov/Gardens/collections/fern.html.

Who else can I ask for more information about native plants?

The Virginia Native Plant Society's website is www.vnps.org/ and their local Potowmack Chapter runs an excellent listserv group. To join, send an email to vnps-pot-subscribe@yahoogroups.com.

The Maryland Native Plant Society's website is www.mdflora.org and they run an excellent listserv group as well. To join, send an email to NativePlantsEast-subscribe@yahoogroups.com.
